Narrative Memoir In 1987, Sara Niles fled for her life from a sure death at the hands of a maniacal psychopath, with her five young children in tow, and embarked upon a new life; a journey of survival that would take the Niles family over twenty-five years to complete. The Journey would involve the fight against what Sara Niles calls 'the three headed monster', or the combined effects and complications of trauma, mental illness, and drug addiction. "We left our whole world behind and fled with nothing, yet the children never even once asked why" Excerpts & Quotes "She made thirty suicide attempts before the age of thirty. Some unseen and unknown inner turmoil, created a war within her: a chaotic war that she felt she could not win, but wasn't sure she wanted to lose" "I wrote The Journey, the intimate and revealing story of our lives, not to shame anyone, or to hurt feelings, but to enlighten, and to awaken and provide a call to action to many of the individuals who are a parent, child, or partner, in at least one relationship that has elements of dysfunction and discord. Someone has to label dysfunction where it starts and put an end to it once and for all." "When the dark night ended, a new day dawned for us when my children were still small, and the new day was as long as the long night had been, and in some ways, just as frightening" "Our flight to freedom and safety was filled with a calm suppressed terror in the children and I, the type terror you have when you are used to living with danger" "Putting away a bad memory without processing it first, is like storing dirty dishes without washing them, because eventually the mold and mildew of our unfinished issues will seep out into our lives at a time when we least expect it. World History Teaching in Asia is the first broad survey of the content and approaches used to teach world history in secondary schools and colleges in Asia. The collection has been crafted by scholars and educators whose goal was to shed light on the importance of history education and to foster understanding of and between Asian countries. These essays show how the teaching of world history in Asian countries has developed since World War II, with many interesting parallels, including the issue of Eurocentrism, but also distinctive national trends, and considerable changes over time. At a time when many Asian countries are making great strides in education, this study of history education in Asia will be of real interest to educators, history scholars, and policy-makers worldwide.
