Water Management Challenges in Global Change contains the proceedings of the 9th Computing and Control for the Water Industry (CCWI2007) and the Sustainable Urban Water Management (SUWM2007) conferences. The rationale behind these conferences is to improve the management of urban water systems through the development of computerbased methods. Issues such as economic globalisation, climate changes and water shortages call for a new approach to water systems management, which addresses the relevant technical, social and economic aspects. This collection represents the views of academic and industrial experts from a number of countries, who provide technical solutions to current water management problems and present a vision for addressing the global questions. The themes underlying many of the contributions include energy and material savings, water savings and the integration of different aspects of water management. The papers are grouped into three themes covering water distribution systems, sustainable urban water management and modelling of wastewater treatment plants. The water distribution topics cover asset and information management, planning, monitoring and control, hydraulic modelling of steady state and transients, water quality and treatment, demand and leakage management, optimisation, design and decision support systems, as well as reliability and security of water distribution systems. The sustainable urban water management topics include urban drainage systems, water reuse, social aspects of water management and also selected facets of water resources and irrigation. Computer control of wastewater treatment plants has been seen as less advanced than that of clean water systems. To address this imbalance, this book presents a number of modelling techniques developed specifically for these plants. Water Management Challenges in Global Change will prove to be invaluable to water and environmental engineering researchers and academics; managers, engineers and planners; and postgraduate students.

Empress Zira of Eri Dachi has spent the last two years preparing to reclaim her homeland. She has gathered many capable allies and built an impressive army. She balances politics and military affairs, turning down many suiters and looking for any advantage she can get, while not losing sight of herself of what must be done. Now, she declares war on the Kingdom of Polema, which destroyed her homeland. And she will not wage this war alone. Grand Master Albert Lugot has been freed from his curse and has spent his time gathering a crop of capable Porters to himself. Now, those new Porters make their first Oaths as part of the Order. And their first mission? To aid the Empress in her quest and to bring honor back to their name. This book shares an exciting adventure that reminds readers that the path forward is never easy and is frequently filled with unexpected challenges. Zira and the Grand Master need to find a way to overcome a madman, The Prince of Polema, as he stands before them and blocks their path. This same man led to the fall of the Empire twenty years ago, and now he seeks to finish the job, by "conquering" the daughter of the woman he killed. To actively seek another's death is not the way of the Porters - and yet, the Grand Master refuses to back down. He throws away the Code he has spent most of his life protecting and enters the fray himself, offering up his very soul for a shot at ending the nightmare that has plagued him for twenty years.
