Public Policies in Media and Information Literacy in Europe explores the current tensions in European countries as they attempt to tackle the transition to the digital age, providing a comparative and cross-cultural analysis of Media and Information Literacy (MIL) across Europe. This book takes a long-term perspective over the development of media education in Europe, and includes an appraisal of media, information, computer and digital literacies as they coalesce and diverge in the public debate over twenty-first-century skills. The contributors assess the various definitions of media and information literacy as a composite notion whose evolution as a cross-cultural phenomenon reveals various trends and influences in Europe. Throughout, this volume offers an in-depth coverage of MIL with all the different dimensions of policy-making, from legal frameworks to training, funding, evaluation and good practices. The authors propose modeling current MIL governance trends in Europe and conclude with a call for alternative and collective frames of research that they hope will influence policy-makers and other stakeholders, especially in terms of MIL governance. This collection is ideal for students and researchers of MIL, as well as policy makers, educators and associations interested in MIL in the digital age.

Forms for the practical applications described in the text, available separately.

The publication of A Monograph of the Work of Mellor, Meigs & Howe, which documents their most innovative projects from a corpus of over one hundred and thirty houses and public buildings, established Mellor, Meigs & Howe as one of the leading architectural firms practicing during the first third of the twentieth century. Their best-known country estates, High Hollow and the farmstead of Arthur E. Newbold, were two of the most published and copied designs in America before the Second World War. Houses, gardens and public buildings based on the designs recorded in this monograph can be found in every region of the United States. For this reason, A Monograph of the Work of Mellor, Meigs & Howe is one of the most influential books published on American domestic architecture.
